A Master Plan Fulfilled

This autumn, for the first time, the Blair community is enjoying the new pedestrian campus. After four years of construction—including a new outdoor athletic complex, Blair Commons and Hardwick Hall—the completion of this new campus marks the fulfillment of Blair’s master plan adopted in 1993.

The Tie That Binds

Three of Blair’s veteran faculty once served as volunteers in the Peace Corps, while a fourth—a British citizen at the time—worked in a similar capacity. Their experience and the indelible mark it made on them is carried forth in their classroom teaching to this day.

Admission Update/7 Principles that Define a Blair Education

Dean of Admission Ryan Pagotto reports on the current state of admission at Blair, along with the School’s new mission statement and distinguishing characteristics of a Blair education.
Students stroll down Blair’s front hill in the peak of foliage season; at right, fall mums outside the Headmaster’s office. This autumn, the community is enjoying the new pedestrian campus (see text and photos beginning on page 4). Completion of this new campus marks the fulfillment of the master plan adopted in 1993. It is that time of year when my dog woofs me out of bed well before sunrise, prompting our early walk in the dark and calm of the waxing autumn. As we cross the new pedestrian campus, awash now in the light of stately street lamps, it is usual that a lumbering van turns in behind Insley, dropping bundles of the day’s newspapers on the porch. Blair students begin history class each day by reading—or studying online—a current news story related to their coursework, a long-held tradition that helps to connect students from our hilltop campus to the larger world beyond.

I must say, though, that lately the news has been consistently grim, with pictures of conflict, poverty and disasters dominating the scene. The general tone has been somber, self-critical nationally, even pessimistic, about specific issues and our country’s prospects in general. “America is in decline,” the theme goes. The economy is flat, the recovery jobless, Congress is polarized, the President frustrated, the rich should be taxed (or not), the middle class is ignored (or entitled), and paralysis threatens all. In short, something is slouching toward Washington. Actually, as a high-school student in the early 1970s, I can “relate.” The U.S. was impotent abroad, joblessness was rising and the economy was crippled by double-digit inflation. And, then, things got better—as they will again.

One thing about the ’70s, though: I do not recall public education in America under fire. In fact, it was the perceived “elitism” of private schools that took the brunt of disfavor. Not today. The new documentary, Waiting for Superman, purports to capture the vast challenge American families face when confronted with educational choices for their children: if independent or parochial education is not an option, then a kind of life-changing roll of the dice determines the type of public education many children receive. To be sure, there are parts of this country that offer consistently high-quality, accessible public education to all, but not so much on the two coasts and in urban areas. And even in good public schools, there is a persuasive argument that the whole system is teacher-centric, not student-centric. Just read Steven Brill’s 2009 New Yorker article, “The Rubber Room,” to see the worst of what union-focused public education has wrought.

Students and faculty at Blair read the same news the rest of the country does, but the mood here is far different from that of the journalistic pessimists. Partly this “shrugging off” is the natural resilience of youth. But with inspiring teachers, magnificent campus and facilities, positive peers and school spirit, Blair boys and girls are enfolded in their hopes to be successful, to have choices, to make a difference somewhere, doing something worthwhile. In short, they believe in themselves, here and now and in their future to come.

Most importantly, students are able to pursue their dreams at Blair on a daily basis: last month, our 60-member orchestra had the opportunity to take part in a master class with the world-famous violinist Mikhail Simonyan; science students participated in the Rutgers University gene-sequencing project; and over the summer, students pursued community service projects around the country and around the globe. Nicholas Kristof, in the October 24 New York Times Magazine, wrote an article entitled “F.I.Y. Foreign Aid”—F.I.Y. standing for Fix It Yourself. Today’s generation—and certainly our students at Blair—are as idealistic and creative a generation as any before them, and while they may possess less faith in government solving the pressing problems of today, they possess an unshakable conviction that—as committed individuals—they can themselves help to make the world a better place.

After only a few short years on this hilltop, our graduates will enter the complex, problematic world we read and hear so much about outside Blair. We know that Blair girls and boys are remarkably privileged to have the opportunity to “come, study, learn” here; they are not waiting for Superman. Even so, they are not elitist or arrogant, nor do they believe the world owes them anything. Indeed, as they move from here, Blair graduates owe the world their talent, abilities, service and leadership. And, because of my time spent with the alumni of Blair, both young and old, I know they deliver.
A Master Plan Fulfilled
Autumn has descended upon the Blair campus, with the first of the season’s many frosts behind us and the short peak color period—due to the dry, hot late summer—nearly over. Still, this is an autumn like no other at Blair because it is the first we are enjoying with our new pedestrian campus. After four years of construction, during which the outdoor athletic complex, Blair Commons and Hardwick Hall were built, the completion of the pedestrian campus marks the fulfillment of the campus master plan adopted in 1993.
Starting from the Arch and looking north, a broad expanse of stone pavers now leads to three walking paths for students, faculty and visitors. The path to the right goes behind Locke Hall to the new Turpin seating area, ending at the turnaround behind Romano Dining Hall. The path in the middle takes one through the central campus and either left to Blair Commons or straight to the upper school dormitories and “The Bowl.” The left path winds in front of Timken Library, then divides to go in front of West Hall or around the side of West to the Commons.

The iconic magnolia tree—carefully guarded by our landscape architects throughout construction—still commands center stage just beyond the Arch, but the entire center of campus is now an expansive, mostly flat, lush green lawn. With so many thoughtfully placed walkways, the lawn is largely free of walkers but still attracts Frisbee-playing and other activity. Running from the Arch almost up to Blair Commons, the green swath stops at the base of a small wall, which encloses a generous terrace of Adirondack chairs, perfect for outdoor conversation groups or solitary Wi-Fi on a mild day. The two flag poles remain, as does the Victory Bell (which was ringing away recently after the football team returned victoriously from Mercersburg), but Kurt's Rock—erected in memory of Kurt Socha '06—has been moved to a new hill near Hampshire Field and the tennis center.
Along the new paths and walkways are seating areas, handsome light poles and newly planted trees. Much of this was the result of generous donations to the interior campus project fund, including a gift from the family of Ruth and John H. Van Kirk ’42, to dedicate a seating area in their parents’ memory. All was in place by Labor Day 2010, when new students arrived to start the year. They, of course, took the new campus in stride, but veteran students, viewing the transformed campus for the first time, opened their eyes with wonder at the change from last May when they left for the summer. And what was it? The beautiful lawn, paths, new trees, terrace—yes, all that—but what else was different?

Suddenly, it must have dawned on them. It was not what they could see; it was what they could not see: cars parked randomly behind the Arch or creeping slowly behind Locke, big curbs to step over, and thick, heavy overhead electrical wires, looping amongst the various buildings and strung on stout wooden poles. All gone. No more cars or curbs. All the wires underground. Overgrown bushes and pines removed, opening sight lines and vistas all over campus, making Annie Hall visible from both the Arch and the steps of Timken Library. On those postcard days that occasionally come along in autumn, there is no more beautiful setting than Blair’s campus.

The master campus plan was created in the early ’90s and now, 18 years later, is complete.
Trustee Craig Dana ’60 led the Buildings and Grounds Committee in the early planning days, while late Trustee Jack Turpin ’62 nearly saw it completed before his death this past May, just as we were breaking ground for the last phase. Still, Assistant Headmaster Jim Frick worked relentlessly through the summer to finish this project, certainly keeping Jack in mind. So, after the fall Trustee meeting on October 16, we took time to pause, celebrate this beautiful space and dedicate a new seating area in memory of Jack Turpin (See page 19).

A large and faithful group of Jack’s friends, family and fellow Trustees, including Craig Dana, gathered on that blustery autumn day. All observed not only the beauty of the campus itself but also the large groups of prospective students and their families attending admission open house, walking the pathways and gazing at the buildings, while red, yellow and orange leaves swirled through the air. While it could have been a somber moment as we remembered Jack Turpin and how much we miss him, we instead focused on the campus we now have—the one Jack envisioned even as those who started the process had believed in that vision years before Jack helped make it a reality. What we saw made the day special and not nearly as sad as it might have been. And one thing was certainly clear: the Turpin seating area offers a great view of the new pedestrian campus and of Blair.
Three of Blair’s veteran faculty, including two department chairs, once served as volunteers in the Peace Corps, while a fourth, Bob Brandwood—a British citizen at the time—worked in a similar capacity in Botswana where he met his wife, Joanne, a Peace Corps volunteer. With the 50th anniversary of the Peace Corps approaching, I spoke with each of these teachers about their volunteerism.

The endurance of their experience (check out these archival photos) and the mark it made is apparent.

The Peace Corps, by the way, traces its roots to October 14, 1960, when after a day of campaigning for the presidency, Sen. John F. Kennedy arrived at the University of Michigan where at least 10,000 students were waiting to hear him speak. It was there that his bold new experiment in public service was launched. The three goals of the Peace Corps remain today: to help the people of interested countries in meeting their need for trained men and women; to help promote a better understanding of Americans on the part of the peoples served; to help promote a better understanding of other peoples on the part of Americans.

Mark Twain once said, “Travel is fatal to prejudice, bigotry and narrow-mindedness,” and so it seems in reading what these four teachers have to say about their years with the Peace Corps. Their written responses to my questions—so revealing in terms of personality, sense of humor and emotion—proved too poignant to edit. Each of their entries, as told in their own words, follows.

—Melanie McMahon
Bob Brandwood, Chairman, English Department

I served in Palapye, Botswana, for two years on the edge of the Kalahari. I was looking for the unrivaled opportunity to water ski and sail while providing a service for the local community. (Just kidding; Botswana consists of the Kalahari Desert, so little standing water.)

I taught English in a private school established by the local Catholic church. As a private school, it did not receive government funding so was relatively poor. Catholic Charities provided a free lunch in my second year and the difference it made to students—both physically and mentally—was striking. The school was technically a junior secondary school, which meant that the students ranged in age from 13 to 16, but I had a 24-year-old senior. The difference it made to students—both physically and mentally—was striking. The school was technically a junior secondary school, which meant that the students ranged in age from 13 to 16, but I had a 24-year-old mother in one of my sections. I also taught in an adult night school, and most of the students were women in the late twenties and thirties who were going into adulthood and waiting to have kids. I had the opportunity to go on many safaris. Many were completely comfortable with being in Malaysia and was able to embrace it and enjoy it fully and without reservation.

I have so many memories from my time in Botswana. I had the opportunity to go on many safaris. Many were completely comfortable with being in Malaysia and was able to embrace it and enjoy it fully and without reservation.

Latta Browse, Chairman, Mathematics Department

I taught high school mathematics to a mixed group of local students (ethnic Malays, Chinese and Indians) in a small town just outside a mid-sized city. Many of the teachers spoke English, as did a few of the students, but all instruction was in the Malay language. More prosaically, I needed a job and didn’t have any other good options at that time! From tutoring other math students at Middlebury, I was confident that I could teach high school mathematics, even though that was not my planned long-term profession at that time.

I served in Malaysia, in the state of Johor, just north of Singapore. I knew almost right away that I’d want to extend [past the minimum two-year service requirement] for a third year. At the time, the Peace Corps paid for a round-trip flight home after two years of service, and I wanted to go back to Malaysia after being home for a spell. I had a sense [accurately, as it turned out] that after two years away from the U.S. I’d see it differently, and I wanted to be able to re-enter my Malaysian life afterwards. The third year away was not as stressful in terms of learning a new language and culture and adjusting to being away from home as were my first two years. At that point, I was completely comfortable with being in Malaysia and was able to embrace it and enjoy it fully and without reservation.

The experience fundamentally changed me and my outlook on the world. It shaped me to become a career teacher, introduced me to an Islam that I admire and respect, and shook me out of my provincial insularity. Being on my own, without American peers or influences, helped me develop personally from a college student to responsible adulthood. I think almost anyone would benefit from a similar experience. Nor have I gotten over the experience. It is not as immediate on a daily basis as it once was. The enduring impact on the RSVPs is probably as great or greater than our impact on those we taught, etc., while on assignment. The tax dollars spent on the Peace Corps have multiplier effects both overseas and at home.
BLAIR BUCK, Science Teacher

I joined the Peace Corps in 1970 and was sent to Jamaica for two years. I did not have to go to Viet Nam because my draft number was 337, so I decided it would be instructive to live in another country and gain a different perspective on the world.

I served as the director of a youth center on the north coast of Jamaica. My job involved organizing leadership activities, scheduling athletic competitions, advising a youth club, conducting summer camp activities and generally trying to get resources for the young people of the community, most of whom had an elementary education and no prospects of steady employment. It always amazed me that, for an island community, few people knew how to swim, so I gave swimming lessons as well.

Among my memories are the political elections that would see men in trucks drive around promising to bring water and electricity to the rural villagers before an election—even dropping off pipes. After the election, the pipes would be picked up by the same men and taken elsewhere. I will also never forget the beauty of the white sand beaches and the coral reefs that surround the island.

The experience was one I value tremendously for what it taught me about living in another culture and about how universal human aspirations are and how similar we all are in the way we think and relate to each other. I would recommend the experience to anyone willing to do without the trappings of western culture in order to learn how most of the world lives.

THE EXPERIENCE CONTINUES TO EFFECT HOW I RELATE TO OTHER PEOPLE AND THINK ABOUT OTHER CULTURES. AS A PERSON TO PERSON EXPERIENCE, IT WAS PRICELESS. However, I would add that the Peace Corps has a political side to it, in that the host country government in power has to invite the Peace Corps in and assigns them tasks that may or not make sense to the volunteer. I eventually felt that I was taking a job away from a Jamaican, so the Jamaican government would have money to spend elsewhere. While it was a great experience for me, I grew to feel that it was not as good a placement for a volunteer as, for instance, a teacher teaching other student teachers how to program a computer or how to teach some other subject.

CHRIS COGSWELL, Science Teacher

I just returned six days ago from three weeks in my Peace Corps village, staying with friends and reconnecting with the place. It was my second time going back (there will be a third time, and a fourth…). Fantastic trip!

I was a Peace Corps Volunteer from 1991 to 1993 and a Peace Corps Trainer in 1994.

Selfish altruism was my motive for joining. I joined because I was looking to help others who weren’t afforded the same opportunities I’d had in life, but the truth is that I was also looking for adventure.

I served as a biology teacher in Kenya for two years; I had a third-year extension approved to work with the Maasai, but a drought and clashes with Somali bandits terminated the project.

A favorite story or memory of those years? I couldn’t pick just one! Besides, I don’t think Peace Corps stories always translate well; many times I’ve reminisced with fellow volunteers, and I seem to remember an awful lot of blank stares as their spouses tried to understand why we were laughing so hard. I guess teaching Maasai mamas to do the twist while singing “Shake it up baby!” has got to be in my top ten, though!

As far as advising others to join today, I would, and I do. The experience has changed, but it’s always been a moving target. Most PCVs don’t experience the same isolation now, in this age of cell phones and Skype, but they’re better at bringing the experience back home (Peace Corps’ “third goal”). The fundamental premise of the Peace Corps remains relevant and necessary, and our country desperately needs more folks who have actually lived and worked in another place and understand that governments and their peoples are two different things. The great irony of the Peace Corps, indeed all volunteering, is that you always get more than you give (including maybe malaria)—it’s the rule.

I’m not a religious man, but during my service, I came to love the phrase, “But for the grace of God go I.” I live with my incredible good fortune every day. I also came away with some great life-long friends and wonderful memories of one of the best times of my life.

While my Peace Corps experience doesn’t relate directly to my teaching, I think it provides valuable perspective.

THE EXPERIENCE OF LOOKING AT ISSUES THROUGH A CULTURAL LENS IS HELPFUL WHEN TRYING TO UNDERSTAND SOMEONE’S POINT OF VIEW OR BEHAVIOR, WHICH IS THE NAME OF THE GAME IN TEACHING.

I’ve never gotten over the experience, by the way. I still have a Kenyan flag hanging over my bed; I hoard toilet paper; I still get angry at all the choices in the cereal aisle; and luggage is a change of clothes.
Undercover Trader Uncovers Ponzi Scheme

An October 9 article in The New York Times by Edward Wyatt, entitled, “Whistle. Then Worry and Wait,” appeared on the front page of the business section and featured Arthur F. Schlobohm IV ’92, known to his classmates as Ty. The main photo caption explained that after he heard Trevor G. Cook, a fund manager, describe what sounded like a Ponzi scheme, Ty started wearing a wire for the F.B.I. Cook pleaded guilty to mail and tax fraud last summer and was sentenced to 25 years in prison for orchestrating what ultimately became a $160 million swindle. An excerpt follows:

Sitting in a Minneapolis mansion and listening to a charismatic investment manager describe a currency trading system that kept earning handsome returns year after year, Arthur F. Schlobohm IV was certain he had stumbled onto a Ponzi scheme.

A longtime trader who started running tickets on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange as a teenager, Mr. Schlobohm, known as Ty, knew that Minneapolis, his home for nine years, was too small a town for a $4.4 billion investment fund to have escaped his notice.

It had taken him just a few Google searches to discover that the fund’s manager, Trevor G. Cook, had been suspended twice by the National Futures Association and been fined $25,000 for using false information to open a trading account for a customer. Calls to contacts in Switzerland and Kuwait also raised doubts about Mr. Cook’s boasts about deal-making abroad.

Yet Mr. Schlobohm later found himself back in Mr. Cook’s mansion, surrounded by a room full of his neighbors, many of whom were about to hand their life savings to a charlatan.

“If I could have just leaned over and whispered in someone’s ear, ‘Don’t invest in this! Just trust me!’, there would be a family out there now with kids that could go to college,” Mr. Schlobohm recalls of the meeting, which took place 18 months ago.

But he couldn’t do that. At the time, Mr. Schlobohm, now 37, was working as an informant for the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Wired to record Mr. Cook’s sales pitches and carrying a hidden camera, Mr. Schlobohm gathered evidence for at least four months as the Justice Department zeroed in on the scheme.

Mr. Cook pleaded guilty to mail and tax fraud last summer and was sentenced to 25 years in prison for orchestrating what ultimately became a $160 million swindle. William J. Mauzy, a lawyer who has represented Mr. Cook, did not respond to repeated requests for comment and for an interview with Mr. Cook.

That the authorities brought Mr. Cook to justice is undoubtedly a positive outcome. But Mr. Schlobohm’s journey as a whistle-blower, and some of the financial losses that still occurred even though authorities were closely monitoring Mr. Cook, also underscore the limitations of the system.

During the period when Mr. Schlobohm helped the F.B.I. to gather evidence, from April through July 2009, at least $16 million flowed into Mr. Cook’s fund—and disappeared. From the time securities regulators first had credible information that he was engaged in a fraud and when the authorities shut down his fund, December 2008 to July 2009, some $35 million flowed into his coffers—funds that afforded Mr. Cook a lifestyle that included an expensive gambling habit, a collection of Fabergé eggs, fancy cars and the construction of a casino in Panama.

“There was a tremendous amount of guilt being there,” watching Mr. Cook lure investors, said Mr. Schlobohm in an interview, the first in which he has spoken publicly about how he helped put Mr. Cook behind bars. “Knowing this was a fraud with the highest degree of certitude, and having to watch people in the process of losing their life savings, was extremely difficult.”

For all of the Justice Department’s efforts, though, only about 5 percent of the $160 million invested in Mr. Cook’s scheme has been recovered.

And for his part, Mr. Schlobohm says that his time as a whistle-blower was often an ordeal, leaving him worried about his safety and that of his family... “I realized,” Mr. Schlobohm says, “that in what was somewhat of an unremarkable financial career, this was that fork in the road where I could do something good.”

Note: Ty is the Society of Skeptics speaker at Blair on 2/15/11 at 7 p.m.
Bogle Scholar Inspired by Benefactor

Princeton University’s website featured an August story about a number of Blair alumni, including Anthony D’Amato ’06, Nicholas D’Amato ’01, as well as Jack ’47, William ’45 and the late David Bogle ’47. An excerpt follows:

Singer-musician-songwriter Anthony M. D’Amato ’10 was writing for Rolling Stone and Spin, producing his own music CDs, and sharing the stage with Bruce Springsteen before he even graduated from Princeton. His energy and ambition give him a great deal in common with the man who created the scholarship that brought D’Amato to Princeton: John C. (Jack) Bogle ’51 H’05.

Runner Hits His Stride at Blair

Tony Iannitelli, writing for the June 21 edition of the Warren Reporter, focused on Scott Chamberlin ’11. Since that article went to press, Scott has continued to demonstrate his athletic prowess. Head cross country coach Dr. Marty Miller reported in September that, for the first time, a Blair boy was victorious at the 38th Annual Canterbury Invitational (large school division) cross country race, which attracts many of the most competitive New England prep school runners. Marty noted, “Scott Chamberlin ’11 ran away from the field and won by more than a 30-second margin, a stunning performance.”

Equestrian Returns to Her Roots

Nancy Jaffer, writing for the August 21 edition of The Star-Ledger (New Jersey’s largest daily), noted that Hillary Dobbs ’06 won the Sussex County (N.J.) Grand Prix. Jaffer wrote, “Returning to her roots, Hillary Dobbs won the $50,000 Sussex County Grand Prix at the horse show where she started competing in leadline classes 17 years ago. It was another highlight in a big year for the 22-year-old Dobbs, who just graduated from Harvard and recently passed the $1 million mark in show jumping earnings. [The record had been held by Olympic gold medalist McLain Ward, who hit the million dollar mark in 1999 at age 23.] She really had to make an effort to attend the show near her home in Wantage, because she was competing on the Vermont circuit this month...Now her goal is the London Olympics as she scouts for potential owners and sponsors ‘who want to be part of 2012.’ ”
Hudson Taylor ’05 has gone from being a Terp to a Lion, according to the July 20 edition of College Wrestling Examiner. Writer Mark Palmer noted, “Taylor, the University of Maryland’s first three-time NCAA Division I All-American, will be joining the coaching staff at Columbia University. According to the Lions’ head wrestling coach Brendan Buckley, Taylor will work primarily with the upper weights as a volunteer coach.”

Palmer added, ‘We are real happy to add Hudson Taylor, one of the nation’s premier 197 pounders over the last several years,’ said Buckley. ‘As a three-time NCAA All-American, Hudson brings tremendous credentials with him…”’

The article continued, “Taylor’s off-the-mat accomplishments are no less impressive. The ACC Scholar-Athlete of the Year in 2008 and 2010, he was a three-time selection to the All-ACC Academic Team and a three-time member of the UMD Academic Honors Deans List. Most recently, he received an ACC Weaver-James-Corrigan Post-Graduate Scholarship. In 2009, Taylor was one of six student-athletes from Maryland to earn the ACC Community Service Award in 2009.”

Alumna Teaches in American Samoa

An article by Katie Brenzel in the July 23 issue of the New Jersey Herald featured Courtney Fields ’04, who spent 11 months in American Samoa teaching fifth-graders as a volunteer with WorldTech, a non-profit that sends volunteer teachers to developing countries. Brenzel wrote, “Fields was responsible for creating lesson plans for her 14 students, following rudimentary guidelines and curriculum requirements. The program, founded by a group of Harvard graduates and students in 1986, accepts applicants for 16 year-long teaching programs. According to Noah Rolff, WorldTech Pacific program manager, the American Samoa year proved the most competitive program for acceptance this year, receiving more than 200 applicants. Fields, a graduate of Smith College, was one of 33 volunteers selected. Components for selection include the candidate having English as his or her native language, having a bachelor’s degree and being between the ages of 18 and 74. Rolff said teaching and traveling experience, as well as the attitude of the applicant, also are major components in selection. Fields met the criteria, he said. ‘She had such great references and such a great story,’ Rolff said. ‘She was the sort of person that would adapt well.’ ”

The article added that Courtney plans to attend Brandeis University in the fall to obtain her master’s degree in women studies and education and is considering teaching at the college level.

Still in the Running for Heisman

A September 2 story by the Associated Press concerning Pitt football player Dion Lewis ’09 was picked up by many papers, including The Washington Times. That same day, Dion was also the subject of a feature in USA Today. Only Tony Dorsett ran for more yards in a season at the University of Pittsburgh than Dion did, the Times wrote, and that was during his 1976 Heisman Trophy season in which he gained 2,150 yards. At press times, Dion was still in the running as the next Heisman winner. Headmaster Chan Hardwick noted, “He is 15-to-1 odds, long but not impossible…” Announcement of the winner will be made on December 11.
“Big Dig” Reveals Bits of Blair’s Past

Kate Skeffington and Holly Newcomb, assistants in the Timken Library, created displays of the broken artifacts that surfaced during the construction project of Summer 2010, resulting in a new pedestrian campus—the final piece of the Ever Always campaign. Sets of China stored in Insley Hall are also part of their exhibit. Kaye and Holly compiled detailed accounts for each of the two display cases; an excerpt follows, based on their research findings:

The great majority of the artifacts were found in the area just above the Boiler House and behind the Locke/Insley hyphen. A few pieces were found on the side of the hill next to Ivy and in front of Timken Library, while the inkwell was found while excavating the Clinton parking lot.

As is apparent in the green display case, most of the artifacts are broken plates, platters, cups or pitchers and crocks. Some of the items show signs of having been burned. Considering the location and the condition of some of the artifacts, it is reasonable to assume that these things were in an old garbage dump. It was common practice to put a garbage dump behind the building with which it was associated. Considering the age of the items we found, that building would have been Blair Hall.

Blair Hall, erected in 1850, was the second major building built here for the school—Old Academy being the first. Blair Hall was sited where Insley stands today; it was a two-story clapboard building that housed both faculty and students. In 1867 it burned to the ground. Blair Hall was rebuilt in limestone and in following years renamed Insley. There have been changes and improvements since then, but the essential structure is still here as is evident from the engravings.

We also found a sampling of glass items and one or two metal objects. The glass is, by and large, bottles; their age is apparent by the lack of threads on the top of the bottles. All of these had cork stoppers. One bottle shows the effects of an intense fire; garbage was commonly burned on site as a means of disposal and still is in some states. This bottle could also be a relic of one of Blair’s three big fires: Blair Hall (1867), Clinton Hall (1922) or the Boiler House (1984). Their maker’s marks are still legible on some of the pottery shards we found, and so we were able to date those pieces’ patterns and production times… The majority of the pottery appears to be tableware; however, there are a few large pieces that look to be parts of crocks or large jars that may have been used in the kitchen or science classroom.

The broken pottery pieces in the black case are labeled with the pattern, manufacturer and years that that pattern was manufactured. This gives a general idea of when that tableware was used here at Blair. Not all of the pieces we found were identifiable, and those pieces are clustered together in their own little group. We searched our archive for pictures of tableware but were only able to find a few images where the pattern on the plates is visible. None of them matched the broken bits we found behind Insley. We did, however, find samples of the china seen in the two photos from about 1955. The china was stashed away beneath the kitchen in the labyrinthine cellars of Insley. All the whole china here came from the cellar and clearly matches the china seen in the photos.
New Day Care Center Opens on Campus
Dean of Faculty Rachel Stone noted that, as the Blair community began the first day of classes, another much-anticipated milestone simultaneously occurred: the opening of Blair’s new day care center for use by faculty children. She explains, “The Blair Academy Childcare Learning Center is finally open, and we are thrilled! Kudos to Aimee Neary and Suzy Lombardi ’94 for working tirelessly over the past several weeks. The center is housed within the basement of Clinton Hall, and Aimee and Suzy have outfitted it wonderfully. Great thanks to both of them for creating a warm, cheerful and welcoming space, and thanks as well to Marlene Wilburn [preschool teacher and past Blair parent—Jessie ’04 and Erik ’06] for her guidance and encouragement.”

More Alumni Outreach
The advancement office recently welcomed new staff members TJ Griffin ’04 and Jonathan Slawson ’05, both of whom are traveling the country to meet alumni and strengthen the School’s connection to its graduates.

In his role as assistant director of annual giving, TJ works primarily with younger alumni (up to their 24th reunion year), including Blair’s senior class. He is a graduate of the University of Miami with a bachelor’s degree in business management and has experience in marketing, project management and research. TJ operated a successful on-campus food delivery business while in college and is a skilled carpenter who volunteers for Habitat for Humanity. He comes to Blair from his position as assistant chief of staff to Pennsylvania State Representative Karen Beyer.

Jonathan, a former member of the Blair Board of Governors, is a gifts officer who works closely with donors to help secure gifts for the School. Jonathan comes to Blair from Lincoln Center where he was assistant to the executive director of the Bravo Campaign. He gained additional experience in administration, fund raising and event management at the McCarter Theater Center, New World Stages, Stagestruck Performing Arts Center and Disney’s In Tune Monthly, a music magazine for high school students. A graduate of Westminster Choir College, Jonathan received a B.M. in music education, with a dual concentration in arts administration and American studies, and is currently pursuing a master’s degree in nonprofit management from The New School.

Both TJ and Jonathan are pleased to be back at their alma mater and look forward to serving alumni of all classes as they help to advance the mission of the School.

Turning Pages for Charity
The annual Blair Read-A-Thon, sponsored by Timken Library, again raised funds to support Partners in Health, a non-profit organization that provides health care in Haiti. Beginning with Spring Break, students earned a penny per page for all non-assigned reading they accomplished, thanks to a generous donation from an anonymous Blair alumnus.

According to Ann Williams, director of the library, the list of books that students read was extensive and diverse. She is pleased to announce that the total amount of funds raised is $850.
Community Outreach, Near & Far
Blair students are actively involved in volunteering and community service, aided by faculty advisor Kaye Evans and Cynthia Crowner, Blair Chaplain. Early in the school year, they continued lending their support at the local food pantry of the First Presbyterian Church in downtown Blairstown, where some students also teach Sunday school.

Later in the fall, students and other faculty volunteers packed health kits destined for Pakistan as part of Church World Service’s humanitarian efforts, and baby blankets were handmade for distribution at Birthhaven in Newton, N.J., not far from campus.

Leading the Way
Leadership training and risk-taking experiences are at the forefront of each new academic year, as various classes and groups take the time—early on—to bond and get set for the months ahead. Freshman attend a retreat at the end of their first week of classes, while prefects—leaders of their respective dorms—enjoy a dinner with the Headmaster at Sharpe House.

Honoring Blair’s Own
The 2010-2011 school year kicked off with an opening dinner for faculty, staff and Blair Trustees on August 28 in the Romano Dining Hall. During dinner, Headmaster Chan Hardwick acknowledged those who have served the school for 10 years, including Melissa Erne ’96, Eric Lunger, Craig Stocker and Andrew Sykes, as well as Bob Brandwood, Kathy (Freeman) Otinsky and Mike DeCarolis, who each celebrated their 25th year at Blair. Note that Kathy married Mike Otinsky over the summer so has even more reason to celebrate. Congratulations to all!
When Blair’s pedestrian campus opened in September, it marked the completion of the third and final major campus project envisioned and realized under the leadership of Trustee Jack Turpin ’62. As chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee since 2003, he guided the acquisition of the strategically located Siegel property and the design and construction of Hardwick Hall, as well as the planning of the pedestrian campus. During a poignant gathering on October 16, Blair Trustees and community members, family and friends came together to remember Jack—who passed away at the age of 65 on May 21—and dedicated a pedestrian campus seating area in his memory.

“Jack Turpin was not just a great Blair Trustee, but a true gentleman in every sense of the word,” said Headmaster Chan Hardwick. “For 10 years, he served the School with constancy and dedication, devoting hours upon hours to his role as Chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee. Blair Academy is forever indebted to Jack, whose appreciation of the architectural history and natural beauty of our campus informed his leadership of the projects that will be a legacy to generations of students.”

The Turpin seating area is located along the brick walkway near Locke Hall and provides a sweeping view of the lawn and trees between the Arch and Hardwick Hall. Jack’s wife, Marge, and their children generously asked that memorial gifts be made to Blair Academy in support of the pedestrian campus, and the School received an outpouring of contributions from Jack’s many friends and associates. —Joanne Miceli
“I couldn’t be happier to do this,” said Alex Sloane ’70 of his recent decision to establish a named scholarship at Blair. A Trustee since 2007, class representative and a generous benefactor of the School’s award-winning tennis center, Alex sees the scholarship as a way to directly support the “unique and deserving students” who have been attracted by Blair’s educational opportunities. “I have been so impressed by the high quality of Blair’s scholarship students,” he remarked. “I would not want to see any such student turned away for lack of financial resources.”

Alex named the scholarship in memory of his grandmother, Elizabeth Nichols Chamberlin. He described her as a woman of “tremendous values” who instilled in him a love of hard work. The daughter of a Bridgeport, Conn., real estate professional, Elizabeth attended Smith College at a time when most women of her class eschewed higher education. Shortly after World War I, she married Ward Chamberlin, a Blair (Class of 1899) and Princeton University alumnus and successful New York attorney. Elizabeth was a dedicated hospital volunteer during and after World War II and an active leader in her local community. “I didn’t want her essence to disappear after my generation,” Alex said. “Naming this scholarship in her memory is the perfect way to extend the values she represented, which have been so important to me.”

The Elizabeth Nichols Chamberlin Memorial Scholarship will be awarded each year to a promising student who would not otherwise have the opportunity to attend Blair. Alex hopes that the recipients of the scholarship will make the most of their Blair experience, taking particular advantage of the outstanding teaching and mentorship offered by the School, as well as the flexibility that allows students to grow to their full potential. “I hope each recipient of this scholarship at Blair will find out what he or she is capable of doing,” he remarked, “and then do it.”

New Faculty Home Dedicated:
Gift of Jeremiah and Yolanda Ciancia

“The Ciancia House, 1931”—Blair Academy’s newest faculty home located just around the corner from campus at 8 Maple Lane—was dedicated on September 29. Jeremiah and Yolanda Ciancia, who generously donated the property to Blair, named the house in loving memory of Jeremiah’s parents.

“Back in 1931, Severin and Adalgisa Ciancia purchased their Blairstown farm as a means of surviving the Great Depression, which threatened their very existence,” Jeremiah said. He described his father as “a real doer” who modernized the existing 1827 farmhouse with indoor plumbing, electricity and a gravity-powered water system. The farm became a haven where the entire Ciancia family shared many happy gatherings.

“Now, 80 years later, we are pleased to see the homestead continue its history as part of Blair Academy,” Mr. Ciancia said, “fulfilling my parents’ ideal of education and providing a means for the Ciancia name and the many wonderful times our family shared here to live on.”

Headmaster Chan Hardwick thanked the Ciancias, whose only affiliation to Blair is the fact that they are campus neighbors, for their exceptional support of the School. They have bequeathed additional property to Blair Academy that will, in time, be used for faculty housing. “Jerry and Yolanda recognized and have helped to fulfill one of the School’s most crucial needs, that of attractive faculty housing,” Chan said. “Their gifts will support teachers who devote their lives to educating young people.”
Estate gifts for scholarship aid have an enormous impact on the lives of Blair students. Case in point: The bequest of Mrs. Agnes T. Millard, whose late husband, Charles W. Millard Jr. ‘22, was a Princeton University graduate, M&T Bank Corporation Chairman and Blair Trustee from 1964–70. Mrs. Millard’s will specified that the bequest to Blair be used to establish a scholarship, and since 2001, The Charles W. Millard Jr. ‘22 Scholarship has been awarded to students whose involvement in all aspects of School life enhances the quality of academic, athletic and extracurricular programs at Blair.

Ashley Strunk ‘11 and Stephen Patane ‘09 are the two most recent recipients of The Charles W. Millard Jr. ‘22 Scholarship, and both are deeply thankful for the resulting opportunities made available to them. Ashley, a four-year senior, has tried to “take in everything” she can at Blair. She plays squash and softball, writes for The Breeze and participates weekly in community service at Blairstown Elementary School. She is passionate about photography and has taken three photography classes at Blair. Ashley was excited and grateful to learn that she had received The Charles W. Millard Jr. ‘22 Scholarship. “I probably wouldn’t have been able to do half the things I do at Blair at any other school,” she said. “This scholarship means a great deal to me and ultimately my future.”

Stephen is in his second year at the U.S. Naval Academy. He recently declared an ocean engineering major and is considering EOD (explosive ordnance disposal) or Marine Air as his eventual service selection. He credits Blair’s unique extracurricular opportunities and outstanding teachers, “hands down,” for his USNA appointment. Stephen served as a Flight Deck prefect, was captain of the varsity swimming and crew teams, and a founder of Blair’s cycling/triathlon team. He has continued his successful rowing career at Navy. Receiving The Charles W. Millard Jr. ‘22 Scholarship was an honor that influenced Stephen to work even harder in his classes and activities. “I’m grateful for every opportunity I had at Blair,” he wrote in a thank-you letter to Charles W. Millard III. “And without this scholarship, none of it would have been possible.”
“There’s no place like Blair . . .” It was the phrase on the cover of the admission viewbook when I applied to Blair in the early ’90s, and I fell for it. I was so overwhelmed by the sense of community, the genuine care of the teachers, the small classes and attention to academics, the friendly and self-directed students, and the magnificent beauty of the campus that I truly believed there could be no other place quite like Blair. And while I know it’s probably a prerequisite for my current position, I still do believe it.

Having worked and spent time at other boarding schools over the last 10 years, I continue to assert that there is an authenticity to Blair that is not found at most schools. It is found in the way our faculty—from the 30-year veteran to the second-year rookie—will “roll up their sleeves” to work individually with a student in the classroom, on the playing field and in the dormitory halls. It is found in our vibrant academic program with courses that challenge students at every level and build on their interests in a broad range of subjects. It is found in our community gatherings like school meeting, chapel and formal dinner, and it’s not that we continue to make a priority of these gatherings, but how the students and faculty interact at these gatherings that make them critical to community-building.

As was the case when I was a student, there is no anonymity in this community. As a faculty, we know our students and our students know us. The Blair ethos has remained constant due to the practices, habits and culture passed down through the faculty and older students. Our annual task as an admission office is to promote our academic strength and defining characteristics to the outside world while also highlighting our signature programs in the arts and athletics in an effort to generate a broad applicant pool of compelling young men and women. Once that pool has been developed, we look closely to determine which students are most likely to succeed at Blair and later in life.

By embracing our well-established tradition as a student-centered school and highlighting our superior college preparation and college matriculation list, we are finding a good deal of success on the admission front. Last year, even in a challenging economy, we posted record-breaking admission statistics:

- Of 717 applicants (an all-time high), we accepted 255 students to fill 145 spaces.
- Our acceptance rate was below 35% for the first time ever.
- We increased our yield (those who chose to attend) of admitted students to 60%.
- Average SSAT scores for accepted students continued to rise and are now above the 70th percentile.

A low acceptance rate and a high yield are key indicators of a school sought after and respected by applicants nationwide, and last year’s admission results enhance Blair’s reputation. By attracting an increased and robust applicant pool, we are able to build a student body that is ready and able to make the most of the Blair experience.

One of the most important factors in Blair’s admission success has been a strong and growing financial aid program. With tuition just over $45,000, last year Blair awarded over $4 million in financial aid to 35% of the student body; the average award was $25,000. All financial aid at Blair is based solely on need and is available to families at every socioeconomic level. A growing endowment and support for named scholarships are vital to keeping a Blair education affordable.

The ethnic, racial and geographic diversity of our student body is not only an asset to community life but a real factor in attracting outstanding applicants for admission. We have become much more deliberate in our outreach to underserved inner-city youth and have enrolled outstanding students from the TEAK Fellowship, The Boys Club of New York, The Wight Foundation, De La Salle Academy, Atlanta Youth Academy and other well-respected programs. Our current student body includes young people from 22 states. International students comprise 15% of our student population and represent 21 countries. This year’s entering class includes a young woman from Afghanistan who was able to come to Blair because of the assistance of Blair alumni and parents, as well as a young man from Tanzania whose father is the Country Director of the United Nations Development Program. The global perspective and significant diversity of Blair’s students make our classrooms unique and engaging places for dialogue and learning.

As we look ahead to another admission season, we are expanding outreach to assert our prominence as a nationally recognized boarding school. In addition to visits throughout New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, admission officers including associate dean Heather Eckert, assistant dean Alexis Machabanski, and associates Amy Paul ’99 and Ben Smith will travel throughout the country. I urge you to visit www.blair.edu/Admission for a complete list of travel destinations. I will be in Hong Kong and Shanghai in late November and am happy to meet with alumni in either city. We are also fortunate that numerous current parents have opened their homes to host admission receptions in New Jersey, Connecticut and New York, demonstrating again the warmth and hospitality of the Blair family.

While the Blair admission team traverses the continent and the globe to meet prospective students, it is important to note that many of our applicants chose to pursue a Blair education due to a family connection or the referral of a respected friend. Of our newly enrolled students, over one-quarter has a “family connection” to Blair. This figure is the surest sign of alumni and parent satisfaction and the most meaningful endorsement of a Blair education. Parents, friends and alumni: please keep spreading the word!
STRATEGIC PLANNING LEADS TO MISSION STATEMENT AND SEVEN PRINCIPLES

For the past year, the Blair Board of Trustees has worked with alumni, parents, students and faculty to develop the School’s next strategic plan, which will be presented for formal adoption at the January 2011 Board meeting. At their October meeting, the Trustees approved the following mission statement and Seven Principles as a first step in the strategic planning process. The Seven Principles, developed over many months and with extensive feedback, seek to capture the distinguishing characteristics of a Blair education. A major goal of the new strategic plan will be to continue to advance Blair’s national and international reputation; the Seven Principles define Blair’s values and vision.

MISSION STATEMENT

Blair develops in young men and women the intellectual skills, values and strength of character that will prepare them for success as students in the finest colleges and universities, as individuals contributing to the greater good, and as alumni committed to sustaining this mission.

THE FOLLOWING PRINCIPLES SEEK TO DISTILL THOSE VALUES THAT GUIDE OUR DAILY WORK AT BLAIR:

We know our students.

Blair faculty members are not only experts in their subject areas, they are also highly knowledgeable about individual students. Knowing our students is a priority at Blair. To that end, the entire faculty meets five times a year to discuss each student’s progress; faculty members are active in the dorm—not in their apartments—every evening; and each student is guided by two faculty members, an assigned academic monitor and an advisor of his or her own choosing. We believe that boarding school is not college, and that even the brightest, most independent 14-to-18-year-olds do best when they are among adults who know them well, focus on their development, and mentor them.

Community is the hallmark of this school.

Students learn what they live. Blair daily life is rich with challenges and opportunities—both in and out of the classroom. We embrace a talented and diverse student body each year and build a dynamic community to which students remain connected long after graduation. Engaging classrooms, student-led school meetings, leadership opportunities and learning to work together on athletic teams and in the arts all help students to become independent, responsible and confident young adults.

Superior academic preparation is the heart of the Blair experience.

We consider a student’s academic commitment his or her most important responsibility. At Blair, students learn to read closely, think clearly,
Seventeen Principles That Define a Blair Education

analyze quantitatively, communicate effectively and broaden their understanding of the world. The “open architecture” of the curriculum allows students to find the appropriate level of challenge in their courses. Teachers set high standards but are generous with their time and support. Founded on academic honor, a Blair education fosters intellectual initiative and persistence; its ultimate aim is to create a life-long love of learning.

Beyond self is happiness.
Adolescence is a time of intense self-absorption, but Blair compels students to look beyond themselves through engagement in community life, service to others, and the responsibilities of leadership. Blair’s traditions of school meetings, “chapel” and vespers, along with daily conversations in classrooms and dormitories, embrace the moral issues in the world today and in students’ personal lives. As a community, we focus deliberately on the development of the skills and values that lead away from preoccupation with self to adult lives of purpose. At Blair, integrity, responsibility and respect for others are the three essential values that shape community life.

School size matters.
Residential matters.
If our knowledge of students is what distinguishes us as a school, then size of school is critical. Personal knowledge of individual students is possible only in a community small enough for genuine relationships. Yet providing a variety of programs and diversity of student experiences requires a certain breadth and scale. At Blair, we believe that being a mid-size, residential school allows us to achieve both goals. We are committed to being a “boarding school” and offering our day students the same experience as boarding students.

Communicate, communicate, communicate.
At the heart of any successful human enterprise is frequent, open and thoughtful communication. We believe we work best with students when we partner and communicate well with parents. We also seek to communicate effectively with students, alumni and with each other as colleagues. Equally important, we expect students to learn to communicate and advocate for themselves. Only through purposeful, effective communication is progress possible.

Outcomes are important.
The Blair experience provides students many opportunities to achieve excellence and learn to become their “best” selves. Yet the Blair experience and a Blair diploma are never ends in themselves. Blair expects worthwhile accomplishment in life. We expect students to prepare for and attend a college or university that will further their intellectual and personal development. And with Blair as a foundation, graduates are ready—when called upon—to serve and lead.

These seven principles lead to an exceptional school community. We know that parents and teachers must work together. We understand that a healthy student culture must be passed from older to younger students. We depend upon collegiality within our faculty.
And we believe that the learning that takes place between a great teacher and a willing student is one of the most powerful influences in the life of a young person.
At opening dinner in late August, Headmaster Chan Hardwick and the entire Blair community officially welcomed 12 new teaching faculty. Each brings a wealth of education and experience to the classroom and beyond. Chan noted that this is “one of the strongest groups of faculty we have brought to Blair in recent years.”

English
Kara McCabe earned a B.A. from Colby College and an M.A. from the University of Vermont. Before joining the faculty at Blair, she was employed by St. Stephen’s & St. Agnes School as an upper school English teacher, as well as a summer program teacher for composition and study skills. Kara also taught and interned at the Taft Summer School for four years. She coaches varsity soccer in addition to her classroom activities.

History
Lara Curtis received a B.A. in global studies-European studies from The College of William and Mary. Prior to coming to Blair, she was a substitute teacher and tutor in the Alexandria, Va., public school system. Laura served as an engineering intern at HNTB and was a coach, swim instructor and lifeguard for various recreational facilities.

Hans Doerr received a B.A. in history from the University of Virginia. For two years, he served as a teacher for Teach for America in Michigan. Hans spent another two years as a long-term substitute teacher in the Detroit public school system. During his tenure with the Everett Rowing Association, he served as head coach for junior women as well as interim director. While serving as head coach for junior women for Friends of Rowing, he oversaw 12 medal-winning performances at the 2006 USRowing National Championships, including five golds.

Language
Timothy Devaney, who serves as chairman of Blair’s language department and teaches Spanish, received a B.A. from Bowdoin College and M.S. from Hofstra University. He was awarded a fellowship in educational administration and bilingual education from Columbia University Teachers College. Prior to coming to Blair, Timothy was principal of Peaks and Cliff Island School in Casco Bay. He also taught at De La Salle Academy and Theodore Roosevelt High School, where he served as dean for Spanish and Vietnamese-speaking students. From 1993 to 2008, Timothy was a wilderness instructor for Outward Bound.

Latin and English teacher Avery Pierce earned a B.A. in classical and medieval studies from Bates College. During her undergraduate years, she was a mentor at Longley Elementary School as well as a captain of the varsity soccer team for two years. Avery worked as a sailing instructor at the Quissett Yacht Club for six years during the summer.

Leucretia Shaw is a Spanish teacher who earned a B.S. from Georgetown University and an M.A. from Columbia University Teacher’s College. A graduate of The Lawrenceville School, she worked there as assistant director of multicultural affairs, assistant dean of admissions and as a Spanish teacher. Prior to her tenure at Lawrenceville, she taught at Saint James School from 1998 until 2004.

Mathematics
Laura Brantley is a graduate of the Hotchkiss School and earned a B.A. degree from Hamilton College with a double concentration in mathematics and economics. She captained the women’s varsity tennis team at Hamilton and served as an admission tour guide as well as philanthropy chair for Alpha Theta Chi. Laura enjoys traveling, running, tennis and music. At Blair, she teaches math and is the coach of the varsity tennis team.

Math teacher Andrea Magat-Molteni, who also teaches science at Blair, earned a B.S. in biology from Villanova University. She worked as a quality control technician for Johnson & Johnson/Mentor Biologics and as a study technician for Covance Laboratories. Andrea has performed with the Wisconsin Chamber Choir and with Villanova’s a capella ensemble. In addition to her choral accomplishments, she has won awards for her piano performances.

Performing & Fine Arts

Kathryn Hylton, Blair’s new director of choral music, received a B.S. in music composition and theory from Hofstra University and M.M. in choral conducting from Eastman School of Music. She served as director of the Eastman Repertory Singers, a chorus of 65 undergraduate music students, and was a teaching assistant for Eastman/University of Rochester Women’s Chorus. During her undergraduate years, Kathryn served as assistant director for both Hofstra University Chamber Singers and Hofstra University Chorale.

Nina Yuen, director of video studies, earned a B.A. in visual and environmental studies from Harvard University. Most recently, she worked as an artist in Amsterdam at the Rijksakademie—a meeting place, production and research platform for young emerging artists from all over the world. Her prior experience includes teaching at the United Nations International School, Waiakea High School and Peabody Elementary School.

Science

Kelly Hadden, who teaches science, is a graduate of Trenton State College, where she received a B.S. in biology. She is currently working toward her M.B.A. in pharmaceutical management at Fairleigh Dickinson University. Prior to teaching at Blair, she worked at P.F. Laboratories and Purdue Pharma and has nine years of experience in the area of pharmaceutical research and development.

Science teacher Michael Ryerson earned a B.A. in physics from the State University of New York College at Geneseo, where he enjoyed working on the stage crew and playing varsity lacrosse, as well as performing research with the astronomy department. While in college, he served as a physics learning center tutor and biology lab instructor. Michael also worked for several years as a lacrosse camp coach.

Science teacher Stephanie Guilmet, a graduate of Skidmore College, co-authored an article with members of Skidmore’s department of chemistry entitled, “Immobilization of the Aminopeptidase from Aeromonas proteolytica on Mg²⁺/Al³⁻ Layered Double Hydroxide Particles,” published in September by a journal of the American Chemical Society. Stephanie’s work provides the foundation for the development of materials that will function in the degradation or detection of peptide hormones or neurotoxins. The article abstract follows:

A novel biomaterial formed by the immobilization of the Aminopeptidase from Aeromonas proteolytica (AAP) on synthetic Mg²⁺ and Al³⁻ ion-containing layered double hydroxide (LDH) particles was prepared. Immobilization of AAP on the LDH particles in a buffered, aqueous mixture is rapid such that the maximum loading capacity, 1 × 10⁻⁹ moles of AAP/mg LDH, is achieved in a few minutes. X-ray powder diffraction of LDH samples before and after treatment with AAP indicates that the enzyme does not intercalate between the layers of LDH, but instead binds to the surface. Treatment of AAP/LDH with various amounts of salt in a buffered mixture demonstrates that between 15 and 20% of AAP can be removed from the LDH by washing the composite material in 0.2 M NaCl. However, the residual AAP remains bound to the LDH even at 1 M salt concentrations.

A suspension of the AAP/LDH biomaterial in 10 mM Tricine buffered, aqueous solution (pH 8.0 and 25°C) catalyzes the hydrolysis of L-leucine-\(p\)-nitroanilide demonstrating that immobilized AAP remains available to substrate and retains its catalytic activity. Recycling experiments reveal that the AAP/LDH particles can be recovered and reused multiple times without appreciable loss of activity. This work provides the foundation for the development of materials that will function in the degradation or detection of peptide hormones or neurotoxins.
Blair Review Revived

“The Blair Review is back in business!” So states Dr. Martin Miller, history teacher, director of the Society of Skeptics and editor of the Review. He writes, “From 1985–2000, an annual edition showcased the writing of various Blair community members: current teachers and former students, alumni and visiting lecturers. Simply stated, the aim was to share ideas with a wider audience. So much of the Blair intellectual experience cannot be instantaneously translated into a thoughtfully conceived, accessible package for those off campus; hence the rationale for this journal. Quoting from the 2000 introduction: “What is heard in, say, a relatively small lecture forum has limited impact; what is produced in a classroom for a particular course is invariably lost to the community. Papers are filed away without much thought, and speeches are given and fade from memory. Well, the Review represents one small effort to reverse this situation.”

Marty added, “After a hiatus of fully a decade, the organizing principle of a resurrected Review will be a bit more focused than that of the past. The potential pool of contributors were the Tuesday evening Society of Skeptics speakers (2009-2010) and the members of the June 5, 2010 Alumni Day panel on American Foreign Policy Challenge: The War in Afghanistan. Their general writing and pieces directly related to the Blair programs were considered fair game. The Review writers of 2010 include: former faculty member Elliott Trommald (H’65) on John I. Blair (part of a series first published in the ’80s); Robert Textor ’40 discussing his experience as an post-World War II administrator in occupied Japan; former New Jersey Governor Christie Whitman on the decline of the moderate Republican center; Wall Street Journal columnist Bret Stephens analyzing American policy in Afghanistan; political writer Doug Bandow shedding light on an enigmatic North Korea; an excerpt from Jean Korelitz’s novel Admission; and business titan David Sokol musing on subjects ranging from fatherhood to integrity. The goal is to project discrete lectures and panel discussions into a wider arena. May it be received as a worthwhile project.”

The latest Blair Review also owes its existence to Ann Williams, director of Timken Library, who created the layout, as well as David Miller ’88 (Marty’s son), who executed many of the drawings within its pages.

A pdf version of the Review can be accessed online from Blair’s website.

Students Study Abroad in Summer

Jordan Beck ’11, Ben Brandreth ’11, Rebecca Dewey ’11 and Billy Klein ’11 traveled to France this summer as participants in the Normandy International Experience 2010, sponsored by Archer Martin ’42, a member of the 29th Infantry Division who fought in the Normandy landings. During a 1994 return trip to the Normandy area, Archer was so impressed with how French children are taught about their liberation by America that he wants American students, in turn, to learn more about the role the U.S. played. The Normandy Allies International Experience program was founded in 1997 to promote greater historical understanding of the 1944 liberation of Normandy and the subsequent reconstruction of France.

Billy summed up his experiences during part of the trip: “Today, with the visits to La Fiere and the Airborne Museum, I began to gain a greater appreciation for the depth and attention to details which characterize wartime operations. The war was not simply two lines of soldiers clashing together, but, rather, a conflict which hinged upon wits and adaptabilities.” Becca also commented, “Today was our last day in Normandy. No one is ready to leave because the area is so beautiful and the people so kind. There are so many stories that we have heard and many more that we will never know...The Norman people love to tell their stories and share their experiences.”
Fall Skeptics Features Familiar Faces

The weekly Society of Skeptics series, which has been in continuous existence since 1977, is one of the premier high school lecture series in the country. The fall roster of speakers proved exceptionally interesting, as so many of the guests were Blair alumni who have pursued varied careers among them.

The public is invited to attend these free programs, held on Tuesday evenings at 7:00 p.m. in Cowan Auditorium/Bogle Hall. Check the Blair website (www.blair.edu) for the Skeptics calendar and details on each event.

The fall series began with the return of a Blair alumnus as guest speaker. Dr. Sam Hazen ’90, a professor in the biology department at the University of Massachusetts/Amherst, presented a program entitled, “Plants and Bioenergy.” Ishmael Beah, author of A Long Way Gone: Memoir of a Child Soldier, returned to Blair for an encore as a Skeptics speaker in September. Prior to his evening presentation, Ishmael spent time on campus, speaking with students and faculty, autographing copies of his book, and participating in soccer practice, a sport he has long enjoyed.

Rev. Peter Amerman, former Blair Chaplain, was also a guest speaker. He addressed the topic, “The Arizona Immigration Law,” which divides public opinion as it relates to the number of Mexican immigrants crossing the U.S. border into Arizona. Peter is among those who minister to Mexicans who become ill while crossing the desert areas and require medical assistance. In October, two past Blair parents—one of whom is also an alumnus—were the featured speakers at the Society of Skeptics program. John Skvarla and Bob Neff ’49 presented a program entitled, “Electoral Reform: The Case for Bonded Term Limits.”

MSU Helps Fund Kenyan School

Blair’s Multicultural Student Union (MSU) raised funds to help build a new classroom. This summer, Blair faculty and students (see photo) made the annual trek to Africa—led, as always, by history teacher Quint Clarke ’87—where they helped lay the bricks that made the new classroom a reality.
Aye, ’Tis a Fine Exchange of Camaraderie on the Course
In 1968, Blair Academy and the Stowe School in England established the Blair-Stowe golf exchange, now known as the Blair-Wellington exchange. Every other year, eight American schoolboy golfers travel to England (and Scotland on occasion) to play three weeks of golf on some of the area’s finest courses. In turn, during the alternate year, eight British golfers come to the United States, spending time at various boarding schools and playing some of America’s best courses. In addition to superb golf opportunities for the participants, these trips abroad afford the participants new cross-Atlantic friendships and cultural appreciation.

This year, Blair faculty members Wayne Rasmussen and Michael Kornheiser traveled to England and—for the first time in 30 years—Scotland as well, with eight boys from prep schools across the United States, representing the best schoolboy golfing in America.

Redos Represents U.S. at World Rowing Under 23 Championships
Blair Well Represented at Eastern Sprints

John Redos ’09
(Cornell University Class of 2013) earned a spot on the United States U-23 National Team and represented the U.S.A. at the World Rowing Under 23 Championships in Brest, Belarus, this past July 22–25. John’s boat finished in 12th place overall on July 25 in the lightweight men’s quadruple sculls competition. His crew finished sixth in the B final for the 12th overall finish. The crew clocked a 6:38.14 to finish 7.69 seconds off the pace. Denmark won the race in 6:30.45.

Earlier in the summer (fresh off a great season at Cornell), John won the Freshman Lightweight 8 at the Eastern Sprints and continued his on-water success at Mercer Lake, in Princeton, N.J., on June 25. Redos and three teammates from the Vesper Boat Club in Philadelphia won the Men’s Lightweight 4x at the National Team qualifier in dominant fashion. John’s family and three of his Blair teachers were there to support him. Last summer, he became the 2009 USCA K1 Touring Kayaking National Champion.

Fellow Blair alumni who also rowed in the Eastern Sprints include Matt Gallira ’08 (for Dartmouth) and Stephen Patane ’09 (for Navy).
The Nigerian press featured Temi Fagbenle ’11, who has just signed with Harvard, in a number of articles this past summer. One paper wrote of her, “Temi Fagbenle looks all set to be the biggest thing to have ever happened to women’s basketball in Nigeria. Standing at six feet, four inches and with a long, lean build that is quite rare in the women’s game, as well as an uncanny ability to score with both hands inside the key, not forgetting a retinue of interior passes and a radar-like ability to rebound balls and block shots, Temi appears to already possess all that it takes to make it in any of the top leagues in the world, including the women’s equivalent of the National Basketball Association—the WNBA. But she’s not yet 18… She’s also still in high school and, even though she has Nigerian citizenship, holds passports from both the United States and Great Britain and has already represented England at junior international tournaments.”

The article added, “With her imposing physique, Temi is understandably the star attraction at her school, Blair Academy in Blairstown, New Jersey, but she didn’t travel from England to the United States three years ago—which was also around the period she decided to take up basketball—to pursue a career in sports, as her goals are surprisingly more academic than might be assumed of a player of her caliber…In the United States, she is currently listed among the top 25 players in her category.”

Temi’s father told the press, “For Temi, basketball is just an interest. She does not want to take it as a career, as she does not see much of a future in it beyond a few years. So for her, she is looking beyond basketball…”

By the time you receive this issue of the Bulletin, Peddie Day 2010 will have taken place. Please check the final outcome of this annual, long-standing rivalry—held at home this year—on the Blair website at www.blair.edu. THE DROWSY CHAPERONE
Music and Lyrics by Lisa Lambert and Greg Morrison
Book by Bob Martin and Don McKellar
February 17, 18 & 19, 7:30 p.m.
DuBois Theatre
This musical comedy begins in the apartment of a die-hard musical-theater fan who puts his favorite soundtrack album on his turntable, and the musical literally bursts to life in his living room, telling the rambunctious tale of a brazen Broadway starlet trying to find, and keep, her true love.

FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE
February 24, 25 & 26, 7:30 p.m.
Wean Studio Theatre
This series of work by American playwrights presents a myriad of relationship situations. Join the Academy Players for a look at the humorous side of dating and marriage as our notions of relationships evolve, change and stay the same over time.

PICNIC
By William Inge
May 12, 13 & 14, 7:30 p.m.
Wean Studio Theatre
Winner of the 1953 Pulitzer Prize and the Critics Circle Award, Picnic takes place on Labor Day weekend in the joint backyards of two middle-aged widows. They, along with various other female characters, dominate this status-quo environment until a virile young man arrives in town and upsets the balance these various women have maintained in their lives.

THE COMPLETE HISTORY OF AMERICA (ABRIDGED)
By Adam Long, Reed Martin and Austin Tichenor
May 19, 20 & 21, 7:30 p.m.
Robert J. Evans Open Air Theatre
From the writers of The Complete Works of William Shakespeare (Abridged), this romp covers dozens of historical events in the history of America. Irreverent, zany and manic, the play is sure to make one wonder how one ever grew bored in U.S. History class!

The Romano Gallery

The Romano Gallery is located in the Armstrong-Hipkins Center for the Arts. Normal gallery hours are 10 a.m. - 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Please check the Blair website (www.blair.edu) for the dates and times of each artist’s reception and for gallery hours affected by school vacations.

Photographer Jim Rimi and his multi-media exhibit kicked off the season of Romano Gallery artists in September. His show included original recordings of street musicians and interviews of people he had photographed between 1983 and 1994 in homeless shelters and the subway systems of NYC. Copies of his book, New York City Underground, were sold, with a portion of the proceeds donated to the Salvation Army to help restore the lives of men, women and children in New York City.

LARRY STEELE
Now through December 4
The convention Larry Steele most frequently uses in creating sculpture is that of making work to be seen in the round. He has found that explaining the value of this is most easily achieved by comparing it to another convention: the nude. Both tend to reveal the empirical world, as well as the universe of personified forces of nature, history and the psyche. They are conventions that engender a sense of exposure of content to the vicissitudes of time and the elements. And, even at their most bombastic extremes, they inevitably refer to our vulnerabilities and self-consciousness.

DOUGLAS GRAUPE ’05
December 6, 2010-January 8, 2011
This show brings together two veins of local artist/alumnus Douglas Graupe’s work – black and white stippled landscape drawings and a selection of his abstract oil paintings. In each of these two styles, Graupe builds up compositions by manipulating light and shadow to create visual environments. Proceeds from print sales will go to Wrapsody of Hope to benefit children with Neurofibromatosis and their families.

BLAIR MEDIA
Blair media students produce a variety of videos including documentaries, mockumentaries, interviews, mini-movies and public service announcements. Students produce and edit an enormous range of interesting work. Screening times will be posted on the website as they are scheduled.
Violinist Mikhail Simonyan Performs for School

In October, violinist Mikhail Simonyan, sponsored by Blair Trustee Joel Kolbert, performed for students and faculty as part of the 2010-2011 Bartow Concert Series. In the spring, Simonyan will debut as soloist with the New York Philharmonic at Lincoln Center’s Avery Fisher Hall. At age 13, he made his New York debut at Lincoln Center. During his visit to Blair, Simonyan also conducted an open rehearsal with Blair’s Orchestra and taught a master class. To view video clips of both sessions, log onto our website at www.blair.edu and refer to the Blair videos online section.

The Bartow Series is a program endowed with the mission to expand the artistic experiences of Blair students by bringing professional performers from far and wide to the Blair stage. Nevitt Bartow taught at Blair from 1961 until his death in 1973 from leukemia at the age of 39. He was a dedicated music teacher and talented composer who helped shape Blair’s arts program. For more information about the series, or if you are interested in bringing a group to the Blair stage, please contact Jennifer Pagotto at (908) 362-6121, ext. 6678, or pagotj@blair.edu

TARA WHITAKER ’98
January 10–February 3
Tara, an alumnus, fell in love with children’s books from visits to the local library as a child. Her passion for illustration led her to animation as well. Her education in art began early, from classes at Pratt to more formal training at RISD and Cal Arts where she earned her BFA in character animation in 2002. She has designed and animated for such companies as Nickelodeon, Cartoon Network, Fox Animation, PBS, CBS and, most recently, Disney. In her work, she hopes to foster a sense of wonder for the small things in the world that are sometimes overlooked.

NAOMI NEMTZOW / PETER CASANAVE
February 7–March 5
These two artists are both close observers of the urban landscape who delight in the visual surprises of shape, color and light. Naomi will exhibit both “plein air” paintings and a series of abstract collages. She uses her paintings as studies in order to create collages in which shapes become more geometric and colors more playful. Peter will exhibit photographs taken during his constant explorations of the city—traffic on city streets, pedestrians passing shop windows, musicians playing in subway stations.

MONICA BERNIER
March 28–April 23
Bernier’s work over the last 12 years has been an exploration of invented form and shape. The content is both idiosyncratic and universal. Two dimensional structure and rhythm are accomplished through repetition, variation and echoing. She has deliberately opted for shape as a kind of iconic handwriting. In seeking the objective from the abstract, a pure emotional content can be revealed.

ANNUAL STUDENT ART EXHIBITION
April 27–May 14

ALUMNI SHOW: CONTEMPORARY ARTISTS
May 16–June 11
This group exhibition features the art of Blair alumni from their formative years to their present work. Moving from their common Blair experience, each has pursued a professional career in the contemporary art world. In so doing, each expresses a different personal vision through a variety of medium, from traditional to experimental. Each contemporary artist contributes uniquely to the genre—some work abstractly, others figuratively; some create provocative art, others art for aesthetic enjoyment; and, some provoke dialog about social issues. All are committed to exploring their individuality and connection to the world around them.
Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends,

Once again, it is my pleasure to present this brief update of Blair Academy’s financial position at the completion of the 2009-10 fiscal year. The economic downturn over the last several years has presented the School with various challenges, but one of our main objectives throughout this period has been to prepare for the worst while positioning the School to be stronger when the economy rebounds.

During the winter of 2009, the administration and Board of Trustees spent a great deal of time preparing an operating budget for the 2009-10 school year that could respond to the unpredictability of the economy and the possibility of either a decline in enrollment or reduced financial support from our alumni and parents. Fortunately, neither student interest nor alumni and parent support wavered with the economy. The combination of full student enrollment and a record-breaking annual fund resulted in a successful fiscal year with an operating surplus. All such surpluses are reinvested to support both the endowment and physical plant improvements throughout campus.

Blair Academy continues to rely heavily upon tuition revenue for our operations with net tuition contributing 72% of total revenues, compared to approximately 56% in our peer schools. As the pie chart (opposite, left) indicates, Blair’s endowment draw plays a crucial role in ensuring that Blair can provide a quality education for today’s students as well as future generations of students. The challenge of fulfilling Blair’s educational mission while maintaining an affordable tuition comparable to peer schools is possible only if we can continue to grow our endowment and increase annual contributions to the Blair Fund.

The Blair Academy endowment portfolio is managed by the Investment Committee of the Board of Trustees. This committee meets regularly throughout the year with our investment consultant to review the portfolio and asset allocation before making decisions regarding potential changes in investments. On June 30, 2010, the Blair Academy endowment had a market value of $54,534,508, having partially regained lost market value from the last several years. As you can see from the chart below, we have made a conscious decision to minimize the draw from the endowment to support operations during the current recession in an attempt to preserve the endowment for future students. The traditional endowment spending policy for Blair is to withdraw 5% of a 12-quarter endowment average; however, given the decline in market value over the last two years, we used an alternative formula that focused on the current value of the endowment, reducing our draw and preserving endowment principal.

At year end, the portfolio consisted of approximately 51% equities of which 13% were in international and emerging markets, 24% was invested in fixed income and 25% in alternative investments (pie chart, above right). The long-term investment objective of the Blair Academy endowment portfolio is to attain a total return on endowment assets, net of manager fees, which will meet the annual spending requirements of the School while also providing for the long-term growth of the endowment on an inflation-adjusted basis. The Investment Committee is currently in the process of evaluating our asset allocation and total return expectations given the changes in the global economy.

The summer of 2010 saw the renovation and reconfiguration of the central portion of campus to accommodate pedestrian-only traffic along with the installation of new landscaping to accentuate our beautiful buildings. The idea of eliminating the road through the middle of campus was a component of the 1993 campus master plan. The idea was embraced by the Board of Trustees though not implemented until after the construction of Armstrong-Hipkins Center for the Arts, Timken Library, Annie Hall and, finally, Hardwick Hall. The completion of Hardwick Hall also gave us the opportunity to complete the loop road, confining vehicular traffic to the outer parts of campus. This renovation of the center of campus also allowed us to replace and upgrade much of our water, steam, electric and sewer infrastructure.

Blair Academy was extremely fortunate to enjoy the leadership and vision of the late Jack Turpin ’62 throughout these years of campus transformation. As chairman of the Buildings and Grounds Committee from 2003 until his untimely death in May of 2010, Jack oversaw many of these projects from concept to completion. An outdoor seating area overlooking the heart of our campus was dedicated in Jack’s memory this past October. We are all very grateful for his dedicated service to Blair Academy.

Sincerely,
James Frick
Assistant Headmaster for Finance & Operations
I am pleased to present the 2009-2010 Blair Academy annual report detailing the record-breaking achievements of this year’s Blair Fund. Thanks to the generosity of alumni, parents and friends, an all-time high of $2.47 million was raised. Alumni participation held steady at 32%, while parent participation rose to 81%—the highest in the School’s history. These numbers are most impressive, particularly since they were achieved in an uncertain economic climate, and they speak volumes about your deep commitment to Blair’s educational mission. I extend my personal thanks to each and every one of you who made a gift to Blair this year.

As we look to the future, the Board of Trustees and administration are working diligently to ensure the School’s near- and long-term success. There are many indicators of continued vitality and growth: Blair is fully enrolled for the 2010-11 school year; our new facilities, accomplished as a result of the Ever Always Campaign, are fully utilized; the pedestrian campus project is now complete; and the strategic planning process—a mechanism for quantifying our goals and vision for Blair—is well under way.

Your participation in Blair’s future is not only welcome but absolutely necessary as we preserve and grow our great boarding school tradition for the next generation of students. I urge you to visit campus, attend regional alumni events and keep up with the news of our School, alumni and students through the website and other communications. We are the stewards of a tremendous school that provides education and opportunity that can lead to a lifetime of meaningful service and professional accomplishment. I thank you for your continued commitment to Blair.

Sincerely,
James P. Jenkins ’66
Chairman, Blair Board of Trustees

Anniversary Club
The Anniversary Club was created in 1998 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of Blair Academy. Alumni who have not yet celebrated a 10th reunion and give in the range of $100 to $249 create a solid base upon which to build the next 150 years.

The purpose of the Alumni Association Board of Governors is to promote a continuing, meaningful and effective relationship between alumni and the School. The Board acts as an advisory body to the Headmaster, with whom they meet regularly, and also focuses on issues related to alumni, such as alumni relations, communications, reunions, and fundraising.

He found a campus of eleven acres; he leaves a campus of over three hundred acres. He found buildings few in number, poorly equipped; he leaves a large group of buildings finely equipped for every school purpose.
He found a school provincial in type, of one hundred pupils; he leaves a school famous throughout the country.

—Albert Myrick Freeman, on the legacy of Dr. John C. Sharpe, Headmaster 1898–1927

The John C. Sharpe Society embodies the spirit and reflects the vision of Dr. John C. Sharpe, one of Blair’s most influential headmasters.
Planned gifts are the cornerstone of Blair’s future, and membership in the John C. Sharpe Society ensures that commitment to the future.

To become a member of the John C. Sharpe Society, please contact Susan Habermann, Director of Capital Giving, 908-362-6121, ext. 5653, habers@blair.edu.

IN MEMORY OF...

Clarence A. Heuer. A 1941 graduate of Colgate University, Mr. Heuer was stationed in Europe during World War II, serving as an officer in the military police. He worked in the surety bond business, becoming a principal in Surety Agency and an officer in the National Association of Surety Bond Producers. "Doc" was a three-letter athlete at Blair, playing on the varsity football, basketball and track teams. He was predeceased by his wife of 65 years, Kathryn, as well as his wife of 57 years, Kathryn, as well as three children and five grandchildren.

1940

Clifford A. Crispell Jr. A World War II U.S. Navy veteran, Mr. Crispell was a member of the Reformed Church of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and the Holland Society of New York and served on the board of directors of the Mid-Hudson Workshop for the Disabled. He is survived by his wife of 39 years, Jane, and three children.

1941

Frederick H. Kraus. Mr. Kraus, a U.S. Army Air Corps captain during World War II, flew 43 missions as a B-24 pilot in the Asiatic-Pacific theater. He was awarded the Air Medal (three stars) and the Presidential Unit Citation in recognition of his meritorious service. Mr. Kraus graduated from Lehigh University in 1947 with a bachelor’s degree in business administration and worked for Merck and Co. for 12 years. The remainder of his career was spent in the pharmaceutical packaging industry from which he retired as a vice president in 1977. An active member of St. John's Episcopal Church in Naples, Fla., he served as treasurer and was a founder of St. John's Thrift Shop. Mr. Kraus is survived by his wife of 64 years, Alice, four children, 13 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Ronald A. Beyer. Mr. Beyer was an honor roll student at Blair and played junior varsity soccer and basketball. He graduated from Lehigh University and worked as a chemical engineer for Gotham Ink and Color in Long Island City, New York. Predeceased by his wife, Ann Marie, Mr. Beyer is survived by five children and 11 grandchildren.

1949

Ronald A. Beyer. Mr. Beyer was a World War II U.S. Navy veteran, having served two years in the Asiatic-Pacific and American theaters. He graduated from Rutgers University in 1953 with a bachelor of science degree and worked for Alan Wood Steel Company in Cansahohacken, Pa., before joining Exxon Co. USA. He retired as a senior marketing representative following 20 years with Exxon. Mr. Whelan enjoyed spending time with his family at the beach in Loveladies, N.J., and Naples, Fla., before settling in Kittery Point, Me., in 2004. Loyal to Blair throughout his life, he is survived by his wife of 57 years, Ida, three sons and daughters-in-law, and six grandchildren.

James E. Brackbill Jr. Dr. Brackbill, an honor roll student at Blair, earned his undergraduate degree at Cornell University where he was a member of Psi Upsilon fraternity with Blair classmates Bin Petit ’51 and Bud Rose ’51. He earned his medical degree at the University of Pennsylvania and practiced family medicine and general surgery in Massachusetts until his retirement in the late ’90s. Dr. Brackbill served as a Captain in the U.S. Army in Korea. With a great love of farming and true entrepreneurial spirit, he founded Crane Neck Christmas Tree Farm in West Newbury, Mass., which he operated with his family for over 40 years. He served on the board of directors of both the National and Massachusetts Christmas Tree Associations, volunteered for Habitat for Humanity and served on the West Newbury Planning Board for over 20 years. Dr. Brackbill's wife of 51 years, Joan, was the love of his life and they traveled extensively, entertained generously and were partners in everything. Predeceased by his brother, Dr. David S. Brackbill ’52, Dr. Brackbill's survivors include Joan, two children and their spouses, and four grandchildren.

Richard W. Howell. Mr. Howell attended Dennison University and the University of Denver. He worked for various companies in the oil and gas industry from which he retired as a vice president and volunteered for many local organizations. A talented woodworker and musician, he also enjoyed book collecting and fishing. Mr. Howell is survived by Marnie, his wife of 35 years, three sons and daughters-in-law, and a granddaughter.

1951

Richard W. Howell.

Sabrina M. Simmons. A photographer, journalist and multi-media artist, Mrs. Simmons earned her bachelor’s degree at Tulane University and master’s degree in photography at Savannah College of Art and Design. She and her husband, Jack, were married in 1993, and their daughters, Savannah and Mary, were born in 1998 and 2000. Mrs. Simmons was devoted to her family yet pursued her career aspirations, working at various times as editor of Skirt! magazine, guest editor of Deep magazine and advocacy editor of Connect Savannah. She taught photography at Armstrong Atlantic State University in Savannah, was a favorite substitute teacher at her daughters’ elementary school and had her own freelance photography business. Mrs. Simmons was an active volunteer in her community as well, serving with Chatham Savannah Citizen Advocacy and on the board of the Flannery O’Connor Home. For her 20th Blair reunion, Mrs. Simmons wrote of her accomplishments with characteristic humor and grace: “I have my husband and my friends, who love me and think I am hilarious (at times). My daughters are polite and kind and interested in the world, and I am very proud of them. I love to write and take photographs, and for many years I worked as a journalist. Right now I am teaching college kids part time. My other accomplishments include my ability to pack light, find good deals, throw a hell of a Savannah Army, and cook veal scaloppini.” In addition to her beloved husband and daughters, Mrs. Simmons is survived by her stepfather, Donald C. Hazard ’63 and her mother, Stephanie Hazard, two sisters and two brothers.
Join the $250,000 Alumni Challenge

We invite you to help build Blair’s future!

Blair Academy provides an extraordinary educational experience for young people, and our youngest alumni have achieved some of the highest Blair Fund participation levels of any boarding school in the country.

The 2010-2011 Alumni Challenge was initiated by a group of committed Blair alumni who believe that Blair’s future will be determined by the next generation of alumni support and leadership. They want to inspire all Blair alumni to become active supporters of their alma mater, strengthening the foundation of this great school and building for the future. This year expect to hear from a Blair volunteer who will ask you to participate in the Challenge. Or even better—make your gift today!

Every new gift will generate a minimum of $250 for Blair. New gifts over $250 will be matched—dollar for dollar—up to $10,000.

If you were unable to give to Blair last year and you make a gift this year, the Alumni Challenge will provide the following: new gifts up to $250 will generate $250 for Blair; new gifts over $250 will be matched dollar for dollar—up to $10,000.

Increased gifts will be matched up to $10,000. For each increased gift, the increase will be matched—dollar for dollar—up to $10,000. For example, if you gave $300 last year and you give $500 this year (an increase of $200), the Alumni Challenge will provide an additional $200 for Blair. If you gave $1,000 last year and you give $5,000 this year, the Alumni Challenge will provide an additional $4,000 for Blair.

To take on the challenge, please contact:

In October, the Women & Girls Fund of the Mid-Shore (Easton, Md.) presented “An Evening with Khaled Hosseini,” a panel discussion moderated by Kimberly Dozier, AP correspondent, and featuring special guest Dr. Hosseini, author of two international bestsellers, The Kite Runner and A Thousand Splendid Suns. Other panelists included Afghanistan’s Ambassador Said T. Jawad, Afghan author and journalist Nushin Arbabzadah, and Shamila Kohestani ’08. Former captain of the Afghanistan Girls Soccer Team, Shamila was forced by the Taliban from her home and now attends Drew University. She is a recipient of the ESPN Espy Arthur Ashe Courage Award and is featured in the book, However Tall the Mountain: A Dream, Eight Girls, and a Journey Home by Awista Ayub. Richard Marks ’68 (parent of Anna ’13) and Keith Patten ’69, members of the board of directors for the United Nations High Commission on Refugees (UNHCR), assisted with the event; Dr. Hosseini is a goodwill envoy to this commission.
